A Message from the President

This is the 11th edition of the Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario Military Service Recognition Book. This allows us to better understand the Veterans' perspective of the war in which they served.

It allows us to reflect on the lives of our Men & Women on the way their lives were impacted during the many conflicts they endured. There were many Veterans who paid the supreme sacrifice to defend our freedoms we enjoy today.

To everyone, I ask you to continue to support this edition as well as future editions of the Military Service Recognition Book.

To all our advertisers and everyone who donated, Thank You.

Proceeds realized from this publication are used to fund various Legion programs.

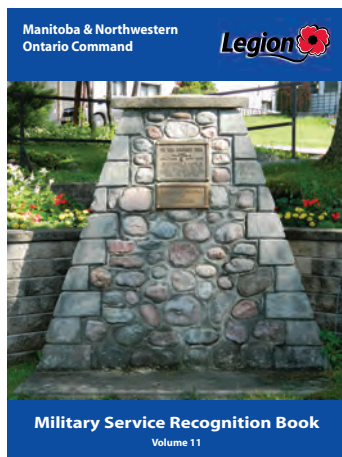

Respectfully,

Jerry Lava
President
The Royal Canadian Legion
Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario Command

Beatty Park Memorial Cenotaph

This Cenotaph is situated in a well-kept setting, easily accessible by water or land, adjacent to the Keewatin wharf (now part of Kenora), in what is known as Beatty Park.

The Cenotaph was built in 1953 and the dedication plaque reads:

“WE WILL REMEMBER THEM

1914-1918 1939-1945

This Memorial is raised in grateful memory of those who gave their lives in Defence of Freedom, King, and Country and to All those who served and since died.”

The Memorial was erected by the men who returned from the First and Second World Wars, in order to honour their comrades in arms, from their hometown of Keewatin Ontario.

With so many men not returning, and some with their graves unknown, those that returned felt this to be a respectable place to honour them in one location. Over the years, another plaque was added to include Veterans of the Korean War 1950-1953 and Peacekeepers. The most recent addition was a Pedestal Plaque, to involve the Afghanistan War, and is situated just to the right of the monument. The Pedestal Plaque contains the names of all the known citizens of Keewatin, and The Royal Canadian Legion Keewatin Branch #13, who paid the supreme sacrifice during these wars. The Cenotaph has been the sight of many Royal Canadian Legion Branch, Zone and District Decoration Days, Remembrance Day Services, and other observances and still continues to function as a focal point for many ceremonies.

Lest We Forget

Bravely Met

It began at dawn with weapons drawn, as battles often do.

A tot of rum, the prayers done, it's time to see it through.

The whistles blow and off they go, hoping to fight well.

Side by side with fear and pride
they charged out into Hell.

It's quiet now among the crosses in pristine rows that mark our losses.

Belying the horror of that long past dawn,
Where they stood with weapons drawn.

Past whispers of the silent prayers of all our soldiers everywhere, ask only that we not forget the battles past, so bravely met.

A Message from the Publisher

Fenety Marketing is very proud of its participation in the publication of The Royal Canadian Legion – Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario Command’s Annual Military Service Recognition Book. This is the 11th edition in the series devoted to recognizing Military and RCMP Members throughout Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario.

It is an honour to work with The Royal Canadian Legion on this historic series of books of remembrance, which commemorate the brave and faithful service of our Veterans, our heroes. We honour them all for their contributions and sacrifices which shaped our great country.

I would like to thank the citizens and business owners of Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario who have supported this very worthwhile project of The Royal Canadian Legion, as it is their support that makes this legacy of The Royal Canadian Legion possible.

Fighting to Reclaim a Dying Heritage

By Melvin Swan

It may have taken me 8 years to stand before the tribunal, but that doesn't mean life completely stopped during that time. For the first 4 months after leaving the military, I lived as an idle hermit. I was depressed. The military had blackballed me so that I couldn't work in law enforcement. When my second wife decided she was tired of seeing me mope around the house, she "encouraged" me to get a job. So, I became a youth mentor. I wanted to help boys recover from the day schools and reconnect with their First Nations heritage. The treaties, languages, and ceremonies didn't just help them. They helped me more, as I recovered so much of the identity I'd lost in school and the military.

All of that led me to bring Bold Eagle to Manitoba in 1993. The 7-week program, started in Saskatchewan, was like an Aboriginal boot camp for men and women between 16 and 29 years old. It combined basic military training with traditional teaching and elder support to restore young people's sense of duty. Our youth have lost their warrior spirit. They've forgotten who they are and why that matters. They've lost touch with their truth.

Bold Eagle was a tool to help them rediscover that truth and to take it with them into the military and law enforcement.

Since I left Bold Eagle in 2011, I've been involved in many organizations and efforts to help my people reconnect with their heritage. I've also worked to strengthen Canada by raising awareness of this nation's First Nations and Aboriginal people. I've served as a board member for Aboriginal Languages of Manitoba, Spiritual Leader for Spirit Wind, Vice President of the First Nations Veterans of Canada, and Lake Manitoba Counsellor.

Our Aboriginal communities are struggling. After my father—Chief Raymond Swan—died in 1993, I've noticed a slide in leadership. My father was a strong leader; everyone and everything had to go through him before touching our community. Today, our leaders have lost a sense of their responsibility to the people and the culture. I have the utmost respect for these men, but they often see themselves more as a mayor than a chief. We need better. We need to reconnect with our heritage. Our people are sick; there's a hopelessness in our communities. The earth is poisoned. We need healing.

Discovering a Faithful Band of Brothers

After my stroke, I was entirely on my own. When the hospital discharged me, I had no assistance from the Western Regional Health Authority (WRHA) or Veterans Affairs Canada

(VAC). I had to fight for the entitlements I'd been denied for over 20 years. I was physically weak, nearly paralyzed on my right side, and forgetful. I thought I was near the end, but once again the warrior spirit in me said, "Not yet."

I fought and clawed and scratched to recover what was lost. In the midst of that fight, I ran across an ad on Facebook for the Veterans Transition Network. I was immediately interested. I'd never done anything like it, and I thought the challenge might help me work through the trauma I experienced in the military.

VTN had a group in Manitoba, but I chose to go to Alberta instead. I wanted to be somewhere fresh where nobody knew me. When I arrived, I immediately found the challenge I was looking for. This was a different band of brothers than any I had ever known. To work through these difficult issues with those new faces was refreshing.

Still, the realities of my physical condition made every moment an intense physical and psychological challenge. The medicine took as much a toll on me as the lingering damage from my stroke. I couldn't write. If I sat, I couldn't stand without help. All I wanted to do was sleep; I had to be poked and prodded to stay awake. But, through all of it, those brothers carried me. They supported me the entire way.

I'm a 6'2" blue-eyed warrior. I'm nobody's boy, and I've never backed down from a fight. To step into that circle and to deal with my psychological baggage was more than humbling. This was nothing like the ceremonies and traditions of my people. This was academic—it made me think in ways I'd not had to think before, to keep things in line. It was hard, but it was good. And what they gave me, I was able to give back in the form of my own knowledge, experience, and cultural teaching. That was the best part. Through my entire life, I've believed that, what you give out, you get back twofold.

Spirit and Strength for the Future

I'd like to say VTN made everything better, but here I am 6 years after my stroke. I still struggle. My memory still fails me. I'm still weak on my right side. I still take the pills. I'm alright in the morning, but by the afternoon I can barely think, speak, or stand. It's hard for me to live like this, to rely on others to care for me.

But what VTN did was teach me how to think about these things and, more than that, to once again take up the challenge of stepping outside myself. To share with and help those other men confirmed me in my lifetime calling as a warrior. It strengthened my spirit to help my First Nations brothers and sisters reclaim their cultural and spiritual heritage, to raise awareness of the struggle they face in the military, and to make Canada a better and stronger nation for everyone.

Life is too short. It's a blessing. It's sacred. That's the message I want to impress on people who've given up on life. Don't hit and run. Don't back down. Participate in the circle of life and do good for all. That's what I'm here for. I don't own my life; it belongs to my people. I'm here to serve wherever the spirit leads me.

ATCHISON, John Wilbert

WWII

John was born in Pipestone, Manitoba in 1920. In October 1941, he went to Portage la Prairie, MB for two months of basic training. After training, the Army asked him to go on active service. He agreed and went to Kingston, ON for additional training. There was a shortage of drivers for overseas service and because of his experience, they asked him to drive. He agreed, it was better than walking. John went overseas in April 1942 and landed at Greenock, Scotland. They were sent to the camp at Aldershot, England. He was transferred to the Ordnance Corps, attached to the 5th Division. In October 1943, they were loaded on troop ships and sent to Sicily. Shortly after, they were moved to Italy. During his time in Italy, he supplied spare parts for vehicles, and everything needed to keep the 5th Division operating. In February 1945, the 5th Division was moved to southern France and then driven north through France and Belgium to Holland. The war ended on May 8, 1945, but he did not return home until August. John has been a 64-year member of The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 230 in Pipestone.

He is buried at Upton Wood Cemetery, Hendecourt-les-Cagnicourt. He received the Military Medal at Vimy Ridge. A letter dated August 13, 1918 that had never been sent was found in his belongings. It read: "Dear Katie. Received your letter and parcel OK. Hope you will not think I am complaining. But please don't send me those trench candles they are simply useless. Also candy and chocolate I don't care for. Please send cigarettes, cake, chewing gum, and a tin of peanut butter, and that will please me as much as a fancy parcel. I don't feel right for writing just now. I have just gone through another German hunt. Quite a few of my pals are either wounded or otherwise. And I feel as if my turn to follow some of them is pretty near. Well dear girl Cyril will be in France again before long. Well Katie this letter leaves me in the best of health hoping it reaches you the same. Ever your loving brother Fred B."

HOMETOWN HERO / HÉROS DE CHEZ NOUS

THOMAS "TOMMY" G. PRINCE

1915-1977

Tommy Prince was a prominent Anishinaabe activist and veteran. After serving in the elite First Special Service Force (Devil's Brigade) during the Second World War, he led the Manitoba Indian Association in advocating for the abolition of the Indian Act and respect of treaty rights before a landmark Special Joint Parliamentary Committee in 1947. He rejoined the army when the Korean War began and contributed to the stalwart defence of Hill 677 in the Battle of Kap'yong. Like many Indigenous veterans, he had a hard time returning to civilian life after fighting with distinction for a country that denied him equal rights.

Sergeant Tommy Prince, along with many other Treaty No. 1 veterans, were commemorated as Hometown Heroes at Lower Fort Garry National Historic Site on August 3, 2019 as part of Treaty No. 1 Commemoration Day.

Tommy Prince était un militant et ancien combattant anishinaabe de premier plan. Après avoir été au service du groupe élite de la Première force de service spécial (Brigade des diables) pendant la Seconde Guerre mondiale, il a pris les rênes de la Manitoba Indian Association et a prôné l'abolition de la Loi sur les Indiens et le respect des droits issus des traités devant un important comité parlementaire mixte spécial en 1947. Il est entré dans l'armée de nouveau lorsque la guerre de Corée a éclaté et a joué un rôle dans la défense robuste de la côte 677 pendant la bataille de Kapyong. Comme bien d'autres anciens combattants autochtones, il a eu beaucoup de mal à reprendre le cours de la vie civile après s'être battu avec distinction pour un pays qui lui refusait l'égalité des droits.

Le sergent Tommy Prince, ainsi que de nombreux autres anciens combattants visés par le Traité no 1, ont été commémorés à titre de héros de chez nous au lieu historique national de Lower Fort Garry le 3 août 2019 dans le cadre de la Commémoration du Traité n° 1.

EDGAR, Clifton H.

WWII

Clifton was born in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan on August 23, 1926. He enlisted in the Navy in Regina, Manitoba on January 17, 1944 and served on the High Seas and Canada during World War II. Clifton was discharged in Regina on October 31, 1945. He received a Service Medal.

EDMONDSON, James W.

WWII

James was born in Marquette, Manitoba in 1914 to Fred and Margaret (Robertson) and was raised south of Fortier, Manitoba on a farm. He served from November 4, 1942 to March 2, 1946. He trained as a Wireless Electrical Mechanic in #1 Wireless School in Montreal, Quebec then served in Claresholm, Alberta and #12 Service Flying Training School in Brandon, Manitoba.

In January 1945, he re-mustered to radar and went to #1 Radar School in Trenton, Ontario. He graduated just before Easter. They all went overseas on the ship the Volindam in American Convoy out of New York. V.E. Day was declared when they were midway.

They arrived at Bournemouth and were there ten days, however the papers for all of them were lost. They were all posted to Radar to #78 Radar Wing in Devon. The 27 outnumbered the ones that were already at #78 Radar Wing so the 27 were posted in groups of four to their costal stations until they could find a school for them. He went to Ringstead Bay where he ran the Transmitter.

In August, all of them went to school at East Loud in Cornwall. While he was there, the V.J. Day came along and their courses were scrapped. Nine of them were posted to the Huskie Squadron and ended up in Brussels. After he was discharged, he worked for Massey Harris in Winnipeg.

In 1948, he married Elsie Kell (daughter of Henry and Maryann Kell of Killarney, Manitoba) and they had one daughter. He was Manager for Manitoba Pool Elevator at Sidney, Manitoba and retired in 1975. They remained living in Sidney all of their lives. He passed away on November 10, 2005. He was a member of The Royal Canadian Legion Carberry Branch 153 for 56 years.

ELLIOTT, James "Wilfred"

WWI

Wilfred was born in Oakland Municipality, Manitoba in 1897. His service unit was the 195th Battalion, while he served in France. He went overseas in 1916 and was wounded August 15, 1917 at Hill 70. He was awarded the Military Medal on that occasion and his citation read: "On August 15, 1917, when his section commander was wounded, Private Elliott took command of the machine gun and section and showed great coolness and bravery at a critical time to an advanced position. Though himself wounded, he continued to fire his gun till it was completely put out of action by shell-fire." Wilfred returned home in December 1918 after spending two weeks in a Hospital in France and two and a half months in a Hospital in England where they had inserted a metal plate in the top of his head to cover his wound. Wilfred later discovered he could no longer live in a cold climate because of this metal plate. He first tried living in British Columbia but eventually went to California where he lived for the rest of his life. Wilfred passed away in 1984.

HASLEN, Ralph Leonard

WWII

Ralph was born in 1912. He was advised to join in the spring of 1940 to avoid difficult living conditions at the Army training centre in Winnipeg during the winter. He joined the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry in Winnipeg on May 1, 1940 and became part of the special forces division. He served in Canada, the United Kingdom, Central Mediterranean Area, and Continental Europe. He was sent along with the rest of his platoon, ahead of the rest of the army to prepare and set up the target areas to be attacked. Ralph was awarded the Canadian Volunteer Service Medal and Clasp. He was discharged on September 7, 1945. His fondest memory was when Field Marshall Montgomery came to tour the base camp, they were not to let him be too close to the enemy lines. Ralph, knowing that F. M. Montgomery would really enjoy being right up front where the action was, took him as close as he could. While the Senior Officers cringed with fear, that something would happen, but Ralph returned with him. Upon returning with F.M. Montgomery, he sat and offered him a cup of tea and he felt right at home. Ralph was given a beautiful citation from the Field Marshall for his unquestioned purpose in the war on September 7, 1945.

OPPERMAN, Lawrence S.

WWI

Lawrence was born on February 2, 1898, eldest son of John and Melinda Opperman of Boissevain, Manitoba. In August 1915, Lawrence enlisted in the 79th Battalion at Brandon, Manitoba, documenting his birth year as 1897 so he would appear old enough for acceptance.

After training in Canada, Lawrence embarked Halifax on April 24, 1916, and with the others in his battalion crossed the Atlantic aboard the passenger ship SS Lapland. Disembarkation took place on May 5 in England with the troop moving to East Sandling Army Camp at Shorncliffe, where Lawrence had a four-day stint in a military hospital shortly after arrival.

While at East Sandling, the 79th Battalion was disassembled, and most soldiers were assigned to other units as reinforcements. Seven weeks after disembarking, Lawrence was on his way to France to connect with the 16th Battalion (Canadian Scottish), part of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade. Arrival in France was on June 29, 1916 and one month later, Lawrence joined the 16th Battalion in the field. By the end of September 1916, the Battle of the Somme was well underway. The Battle of Ancre Heights was part of the Battle of the Somme.

On the morning of October 8, the 16th Battalion was part of a large-scale attack on Regina Trench, a well defended German trench line on the Ancre Heights. Lawrence died during this battle at the age of eighteen, date of death is recorded as October 8/9, 1916. He is buried in Adanac Military Cemetery; Miraumont, Somme, France. His medals include the Victory Medal, British War Medal and a Commemorative Medallion known as a "Dead Man's Penny". Remembered with distinction.

PARK, Harold M.

COOPER, "Pudgy"

Pudgy was officially adopted as the mascot of Branch 73 in 1950. By "officially", we mean just that, as an account was carried on the branch books in his name which took care of his yearly license fee and his food, all of which was regularly approved. Pudgy's license tag was #73, which is the branch number, was reserved for him each year. He was a black mongrel dog with a stub tail. His master, Joe Cooper, lived next door to the Legion. Joe's friend worked at the Legion's canteen and Pudgy often followed him to work. Pudgy formed many friendships and developed a taste for beer, sugar lumps, chocolate bars and peanuts. Pudgy passed away on January 28, 1955 at the age of fifteen.

STACY, Jack Steven

WWII

Jack was born in Vancouver, British Columbia in 1925. He was with the Royal Canadian Air Force from October 1943 until September 11, 1945. World War II was supposed to be the war that ended all wars and he remembered his discharge date when the destruction of the twin towers in New York started global strife all over again. During Jack's short time in the service he survived a plane crash during training and since he was not injured, he was immediately put on another training flight before the fright of it really set in. Jack was stationed to Eastmoor in Yorkshire, England and flew mainly night raids, as a mid-upper air gunner in Halifax bombers over Germany. His plane was forced down over Heligoland, and once again resulting in no injuries. When victory in Europe was declared, Jack volunteered for service in the war against Japan, but the war also ended before he could get involved. He was a member of The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 3 for 45 years. Jack passed away in 2009.

STAPLES, Ernest E.

WWI

Ernest was born in Manvers, Ontario on November 19, 1886. He moved with his parents to Carman, Manitoba on August 25, 1899. He finished his schooling in Carman and then joined his father running their dry goods store. He enlisted in the spring of 1918 and shipped out to England in April 1918 where he completed his training and transferred to the 34th Canadian Cameron Highlanders at the age of 32. He was killed in action in France in the Battle of Cambria on September 28, 1918 and is buried in the Crest Cemetery, Fontaine-Notre-Dame, France.

STARRATT, D. Dean

WWII

Dean was born in Grand Prairie, Alberta in 1923, to Robert and Iris Starratt, homesteaders from New Brunswick. The parents and four boys moved to Hudson, Ontario in 1926 and Robert eventually formed a large transportation company Starratt Airways serving the gold fields of North West Ontario with boats, planes and tractor trains. He followed his older brother Don into the Royal Canadian Navy at the age of nineteen in 1942. Despite growing up around airplanes they stayed true to the family's east coast roots and chose to serve on the sea.

Dean served on a Corvette, the Louisburg II, plying the Atlantic back and forth between Canada and England providing anti-submarine protection to convoys carrying troops and materials to England in the war effort against the Nazis.

He was in Halifax on VE Day and was then assigned to join the Pacific War, but the Japanese surrendered before he was required to report to the west coast.

Dean and Don formed their own transportation company in Hudson after the war, starting by hauling fuel over a substandard bush road to Red Lake from the CNR mainline one hundred miles away. In 1951, he received his pilot license and worked for 33 years flying passengers to forestry camps, trap lines and the Hudson's Bay Post store on Lac Seul, until his retirement in 1984.

Dean died in 1997 leaving behind his wife Esther and seven children in Hudson. He was a member of The Royal Canadian Legion Candlish Memorial Branch 139 in Hudson, Ontario.

He was badly injured at St. Julien on April 27, 1916 but, after recovering, returned to duty being placed as a sniper. He held this position until being killed by a shell burst on September 26, 1916 on the battlefield between Theipval and Courcellette in the Somme area. Peter Yarema in uniform

YAREMA, Peter

WWII & KOREA

Peter Yarema loved poetry and regularly read from the favourite volumes he kept in his room at the Perley and Rideau Veterans' Health Centre. Poetry had been a constant in Peter Yarema's life - a life marked by service to his country, his community and his family. A pilot during the Second World War and Korean War, Yarema later became a highly respected social worker, and a devoted husband and father.

Peter's grandparents and their young children had emigrated from the Ukraine to a Manitoba farm near the hamlet of Teulon, about sixty kilometres north of Winnipeg. Peter's first language was Ukrainian. The family later moved to Sarto, another Manitoba farm community, and Peter attended a French school, where he soon acquired a passion for the language. As an adult, he revelled in French poetry, plays and philosophy, an interest he tried in vain to inspire in his children.

"The children would joke amongst ourselves that when dad would reach for a book of poetry or plays, it was time to run and hide," recalls John, the eldest of three children.

When the war broke out, Peter enlisted in the Royal Air Force; at the time, the Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF) was tiny, although it grew exponentially over the next seven years. Peter joined the RCAF for his third tour in Europe.

During the Second World War, Peter Yarema flew a wide variety of aircraft: from the tiny, open-cockpit Tiger Moth to the Lancaster, a four-engine behemoth. His assignments also varied considerably: from ferrying empty planes, equipment and troops, to bombing runs and reconnaissance missions. Although he often came under enemy fire, the most harrowing moment was when a flare went off in the cockpit - somehow the navigator was able to throw it out before it caused a crash.

DH98 Mosquito

During 1944 alone, Peter completed more than fifty bombing missions over Germany. On these missions, he served as a pathfinder: piloting a fast, twin-engine Mosquito, he and a navigator/bomb-aimer would drop flares to mark targets for formations of bombers. Like most pilots, he was daring and brave. Peter flew with the same co-pilot on dozens of combat missions; after their last flight together, the co-pilot stormed off without saying goodbye because he felt Peter had put their lives in danger too often. Approximately 10,000 Canadian airmen died during these bombing missions.

While stationed in England, he met a woman on a train: Margaret Mary Sootheran served in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force at Bletchley Park, the legendary headquarters for British codebreakers. Born into a wealthy family, Margaret had attended Queen Ethelburga's Collegiate, a swank private school. The Sootheran family was not impressed when their daughter announced her intention to marry a Canadian farm boy, even if he was a pilot. Six weeks after meeting, Margaret and Peter married; both then returned to their wartime service.

Peter Yarema's service earned him a Distinguished Flying Cross, although he wasn't aware of the honour until years later. When medal and citation arrived at the family home in Manitoba, Peter's mother, who spoke little English, stashed them away in a drawer, perhaps unaware of their importance.

"I don't remember much about the war now," said Peter. "I'm 95 and I've forgotten most of it. He remembers, though," gesturing to John, the eldest of his three children.

"Dad didn't talk a lot about his wartime service when we were kids," says John Yarema, now retired and living in Winnipeg. "In recent years, I've been trying to piece it all together and it's been fascinating."

Peter Yarema and son John at the Perley Rideau

During a visit, father and son pored over Peter's pilot logbooks, trying to decipher the lists of acronyms and numbers that document hundreds of flights and thousands of flying hours in more than a dozen different aircraft.

After the war, Peter Yarema earned his teacher's certificate, but the work didn't suit him and re-enlisted. During the Korean War, he ferried personnel and equipment between Seattle, Japan and Korea. Along the way, the family grew: after John came Anne and Sarah. The family eventually settled in Ottawa. "My dad is a loving, practical and reliable man," says daughter Sarah. "I have fond memories of dozing off on the couch on cold winter afternoons with him reading poetry aloud."

When Canada scaled back the RCAF in the mid-1960s, Peter was laid off and soon began a new career as a social worker. Initially, he found it difficult, but eventually became known as one of the best and was often assigned the most difficult cases.

"I met him in 1975, when I was starting my first real job," says Barbara Merriam, a work colleague and long-time friend who visited Peter regularly. "For years, we shared brown-bag lunches - Margaret would make dessert for both of us. Working with troubled families can rip your heart out, but Peter was somehow able to shield himself from that - perhaps in the same way that he learned to cope with his wartime experiences."

Peter and Barbara shared a love of poetry, plays and French philosophy. Together with Margaret Yarema, they loved to downhill ski and skate the Rideau Canal. Although eligible to retire at age 65, Peter continued to work for another eight years.

"During the latter part of his career, judges and other court officials often asked for his advice on difficult cases," recalls Barbara Merriam. "He was highly respected."

Many summers, the Yarema family would pack up their tent trailer for extended camping trips. Peter and Margaret remained active during their golden years - Peter biked into his nineties and volunteered as a driver for a local seniors' organization until he gave up his licence at age 92.

Son John remembers taking his father to the Canadian War Museum in 2007, when an exhibit about Bomber Command touched off a national controversy. The panel questioned the Allies' attempt to bomb Germany into submission from the sky. Many Veterans criticized it as revisionist history and the Museum eventually changed the text.

By late 1943, the Allies had gained control of the skies, but the Nazis exerted ruthless control over most of Europe. Bomber Command hoped to destroy Germany's industrial capacity; and while the effort achieved some success, it came at a significant cost: dozens of cities destroyed, and hundreds of thousands of German civilians killed, along with tens of thousands of Allied airmen. "Seeing the exhibit with my dad was almost overwhelming," says John Yarema. "He told me that there was no such thing as precision bombing in the 1940's and the role he had played in the deaths of so many people broke his heart."

In their later years, Peter and Margaret took comfort in their four grandchildren and one great-granddaughter. Margaret passed away in 2014 shortly before their seventieth wedding anniversary; Peter moved into the Perley Rideau a few months later.

Peter Yarema passed away on September 2, 2019 at the age of 98.
